Actual weighting and investment allocations are subject to change on an ongoing basis and may not be exactly as shown. Investors should understand the different asset classes which make up the strategy as they have different risk characteristics. Investments may be subject to market fluctuations and the price and value of investments and the income derived from them can go down as well as up. Your capital may be at risk and you may not get back the amount you invest. The tax benefits and liabilities will depend on individual circumstances and may change in the future.

The content of this document should not be interpreted as an investment service or as investment advice, and under no circumstances is it to be used or considered as an offer or incentive to purchase or sell a particular product. The content is intended for information purposes only and to provide investors with the relevant reference information for any investment decisions. It has no regard to the specific financial objectives of any individual investor, nor may it be construed as legal, accounting or tax advice. Past performance is no indication of future results.

Similarly, the present document is not intended as an incentive, offer or solicitation to invest in the asset categories listed herein. Investors are warned that the placing of stock market orders requires a perfect understanding of the markets and their governing legislation. Before investing, they must be aware that certain markets may be subject to rapid fluctuations and are speculative or lacking in liquidity. Accordingly, certain assets or categories of assets listed in the present document may not be appropriate for investors. In certain cases, investments may even bear an indeterminate high risk of loss that exceeds the initial investment made. Investors are therefore urged to seek the advice of their financial advisor or intermediary in order to assess the particular nature of an investment and the risks involved and its compatibility with their individual investment profile and objectives.

MANAGEMENT COMMENTARY (QUARTERLY)

The month of March was characterized by a significant increase in economic uncertainties related to U.S. trade policy. Indeed, the U.S. government raised the tariff rate by 20 to 25 points on all Chinese imports, a basket of Mexican and Canadian imports, and on imports of iron and aluminum. In this context, consumer and business confidence indices deteriorated sharply, with a significant rise in inflation expectations, and household consumption data suggest a slowdown in growth in Q1-25. European activity data also indicate that activity in Q1-25 is likely to remain weak. However, inflation continues to decrease and converge towards the ECB's target of 2%, which should lead the latter to continue its cycle of interest rate cuts. Equity markets therefore corrected sharply downward. In the United States, the S&P 500 fell by 5.8% in March, while the Nasdaq recorded a decline of 7.7%. IT companies were the main contributors to this decline (the "magnificent 7" dropping by 10.2% in March) due in part to fears of over-investment. Additionally, the discretionary consumer sector also saw a significant decline during the month (-9%), as markets feared a more pronounced slowdown in consumption. In Europe, markets showed more moderate declines, with the Eurostoxx 50 down 4% due to the exposure of European industrial companies to U.S. tariffs and the slowdown in consumption. While the yield on the 10-year U.S. Treasury remained stable around 4.25% in a context of slowing growth but higher inflation expectations, in Europe, the yield on the 10-year Bund increased from 2.4% to 2.7% due to the defense and infrastructure stimulus plan approved by the German government. This rise in rates was also reflected in other eurozone economies, with the yield on the 10-year OAT increasing from 3.1% to 3.4%. Under these conditions, our Moorea GAP Balanced fund ended down 3.84% (-1.27% YTD).
