JUNE 2025

MANAGEMENT COMMENTARY (QUARTERLY)

In the United States, the month of June was marked by a moderation in activity. While US GDP appears to have contracted by -0.5% in the first quarter (annualized Q/Q), this was mainly due to a sharp rise in imports in anticipation of higher tariffs. On the underlying front, private domestic demand is slowing somewhat, while some signs of deterioration are appearing on the labor market. At this stage, the rise in tariffs is not being reflected in inflation (at 2.4% in May), however, rising inflation expectations have prompted the Federal Reserve to hold rates steady at 4.25-4.50%. In the Eurozone, surveys point to growth that remains moderate but positive. Supportive policies are being confirmed, particularly in Germany. And the ECB continued to ease its key rate to 2%, against a backdrop of 2% inflation in June. The month of June was marked by the war between Iran and Israel, with a short-lived involvement of the United States. Although the price of Brent crude rose by around $10 per barrel at the height of the tensions, it soon moderated, and financial markets as a whole showed little sensitivity to the news. In Europe, equity performance was slightly negative, after a strong start to the year. The Euro STOXX 50 fell by 1.2% in June (almost +8% over the year). At the same time, US equity markets rallied nicely, surpassing their all-time highs on the back of improved earnings prospects and lower interest rates, with the S&P500 up 5% and the Nasdaq up 6.3% over the month. However, the dollar continued to fall, weighing on US market performance when translated into euros, with the European currency reaching a parity of 1.17 against the dollar. On the bond markets, long yields fell in the US from 4.4% to 4.2%, as the likelihood of further rate cuts by the Fed between now and the end of the year increases. In Germany, the 10-year Bund yield rose moderately from 2.5% to 2.6%, against the backdrop of the government's budget presentation. In France, OATs remained stable at around 3.2%, as the government's budget guidelines are due to be presented before July 14. Reflecting this relatively calm month, risk premiums fell, with the ITRAXX at 54.5 basis points and the XOVER at 283 basis points. In these conditions, our SGIS FUND GAP Growth fund finished up 0.38% (-0.18% YTD).
